

Look Both Ways

Jason Reynolds

---

Reviewed by: Erin and Jamie

Blurb

When the bell rings and school is finished for the day, the walkers are finally set free. For ten blocks they have no-one telling them what to do; they can talk about bogies, skateboard, plan dramatic escapes, make jokes, face bullies, and hear about the school bus that fell from the sky... In ten stories (one per block), find out what really happens on the walk home from school, when there are no parents or teachers to supervise (or stop the fun!). From hilarious escapades to brave challenges, join the walkers for one journey and many, many detours...

Erin's Review

I think this book is okay. It isn't exactly my sort of book however it is written very well. The book jumps between different groups and pairs of children walking home from school. In each of these chapters about the children there is a recurring sentence that appears in every paragraph. I would recommend this book to anyone who enjoys a good gossip and is interested in the different sort of people at a school and like situations they have seen and can relate too.

Jamie's Review

I agree with Erin. It is not my sort of book either, but I do have reasons: I feel as if it jumps around too much and it can be hard to keep track of who is who. Another thing is, after it has told one story it does lots of others, it can be hard to remember the names of all of the characters. However, this book is full of mischief and fun too! If you are an adventurous person looking for a little something to have fun reading and laughing at, then this book is for you! I hope this helps.